THE BIKER

A man is riding his motorcycle down the North Island, living the dream, when all of a sudden the clouds start to form.....he pulls over. Out of nowhere he hears a booming voice from above: "My son, you have lived a life of virtue, one that I would be proud of, ask me of anything and I will grant it."

Astounded the man thinks for a minute then says: "Well I wish that I could ride my bike to the South Island. I wish there was a bridge from North to South so I could ride my bike there." There was a pause and then the voice said: "You know, I could do it. I could quarry and build a road that could stretch across the strait, I could do it, but is there anything I could do that would better convey my glory, something that would be worthy of my power?"

The man sat and thought for a minute then said: "OK I wish to know what and how woman think. I want to know the inner workings of their thoughts and what makes them tick." There was a long pause then the voice said: "Do you want one lane or two?"
